SET ASIDE BY JUDGE DUNNE

Editors of Hearst's Chicago American Were Not in Contempt.

MEN DISMISSED

Formal Announcement of a Decision in Open Court Closes the Case.

THEY ARE NOT GUILTY

Chicago, Dec. 7.—The sentence of fort and thirty days respectively imposed upon Managing Editor Lawrence and Reporter Canfield of Hearst's American for contempt of court by Judge Haney, for criticizing a decision of Haney's which he claimed was still open, was set aside this morning by Judge Dunne of the court of coordinate power and the men dismissed.

Judge Dunne held that the formal announcement of a decision in open court closed a case and that a newspaper or writ could not be in contempt for criticizing the decision.

The case grew out of criticism by the American of Haney's decision in the gas trust case in which he held there was no ground for bringing proceedings to declare the gas trust franchise invalid because of the alleged violation of the consolidation act. The American intimated that the decision was prompted by ulterior motives.

MAYOR DAVID ROSE ATTACKS PASTORS

Milwaukee Executive Tells Ministers to Mind Their Own Affairs While He Minds the City's.

Milwaukee, Wis., December 7.—Mayor Rose yesterday afternoon attacked a committee of three ministers who appeared before him at his own invitation to present their report on the conditions of vice as found by them in the city.

"The man that makes that statement," said the Mayor to the committee, referring to one of the allegations of the report he carried, "is the dirtiest and most cowardly liar that ever stood in shoe leather."

The mayor then told the ministers that their report was an insult to him, called one of their number a professional agitator, denied the existence of salaried saloons and of the thirty-two gambling houses, impugned the ministers' motives, and ended the reception by bidding the three to report to the Ministers' association that "they would take care of their particular business he would take care of that of the city."

FREIGHT WRECK ON N. W.

Fifteen to Twenty Cars from a Long Double Header Dumped into Ditch.

A disastrous freight wreck occurred this morning on the Chicago and Northwestern just north of the railroad crossing near the county house, and in consequence fifteen or twenty freight cars were wrecked and put into the ditch.

The train was a large double-header coming here and due about ten o'clock and had two big hog engines pulling it. Just as the train got fairly on the down grade coming towards the city the train broke apart. Most of the cars near the engines had air brakes, while the rear portion of the train was not connected up. When the train pulled apart it broke the air pipe connecting the cars and set the air brakes, stopping the front end of the train dead.

The men on the rear end of the train were not aware what had happened and before an brakes could be set the heavy end of the train dashed into the front section. The result was that the cars in the middle of the train were forced up into the air and dumped into the ditch and across the track so that traffic was completely blocked. The engines were at once uncoupled from the train and came to this city for aid.

The wrecker and wrecking crew were called up and set for the scene of the wreck about 10:30 o'clock to clear up the track.

The accident was caused by the length of the train which was really two trains in one. One of the engines pulling one of the trains gave out at Milton Junction, so the trains were joined and started for this city the one big engine pulling the disabled engine and both trains. The strain was too much for one of the draw bars, and the train pulled in two with the result stated before.

None of the crew were hurt and no damage was done to anything but the cars and the track.

Everybody will be at the Poverty Party tonight at the Palace Rink. Thirty prizes offered for best amateur. Imperial band will play.

TROOPS WAITING FOR THE LYNCHERS

State Soldiers Guard the Jail at Andalusia, Ala.—Three Black Men Killed by Mob.

Andalusia, Ala., December 7.—Martial law rules this town today, state troops patrolling the streets in readiness for a battle with a mob which is expected before morning.

The jail which contains twenty-five negroes arrested in connection with the race riot of Wednesday is guarded by deputies and soldiers. Threats to lynch every black man in the building were made today, and it is believed certain the attack will be made tonight.

Three negroes, names unknown, were caught and killed by a posse of citizens near Opp for alleged implication in the riot, and the whole country is up in arms against the negroes.

Sheriff Bradshaw wired Governor Johns that he had positive information that the mob from Opp would attack the jail today. He asked that soldiers be sent without delay. The Governor immediately ordered the military company at Greenville to proceed by train to Andalusia, and arranged with the railroad company for a special train.

The alarming situation caused by the race riots at noon was more favorable. The town is under martial law and the presence of troops prevented what might have been a wholesale lynching of negroes. The only safe negroes in the county are those in jail. The whites have broken into a number of bands and are running down and killing negroes. Seven are known to be dead and bodies are being found in every house.

MISS HELEN STONE ALIVE AND WELL

London, Dec. 7.—A dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from Sofia says that the surrender at Salonica of Miss Ellen M. Stone, the American missionary, and her companion, Mme. Tsilka, is impending.

The secretary of legation here, has received a report through Salonica, stating that Miss Stone and Mme. Tsilka were alive and well three days ago.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—Secretary Hay received a cable message today from S. A. Eddy, chargé d'affaires at Constantinople, Dec. 6, saying that he has just learned from Salonica that the agent whom he had sent out has returned and reports both Miss Stone and Mme. Tsilka alive and well.

MAN HANGED COMES TO LIFE IN COFFIN

Little Rock, Ark., Dec. 7.—Bud Wilson, who killed R. H. Naylor, a guard of the Yell County convict camp last September, was hanged today at Danville. The trap was sprung at 9:45 o'clock and at 10:05 the body was lowered into a coffin.

Before the lid was placed upon the coffin the body began moving about. Wilson opened his eyes and his whole frame shook with tremors. He was taken from the coffin by the deputies and carried up to the steps of the scaffold for the purpose of hanging him again.

When the platform was reached the body became rigid, remained so for a moment and then became limp. Wilson was examined carefully by the physicians who finally pronounced him dead, death being caused by strangulation.

FOR NEW WHITE HOUSE

Senator Lodge Introduces a Bill to Provide Accommodation.

Washington, Dec. 7.—The bill of Senator Lodge for a new White House provides that there be constructed a building to be known as the Executive Building on the land south of the treasury department.

The structure shall comprise, on the first floor, a dining room and reception rooms, and on the second floor offices for the use of the president and the executive clerks.

The president is to approve of the plans, and the sum of $1,000,000 is asked for the erection of the structure.

This bill was inspired by the urgent necessity of solving the problem offered to a president with a large family in the overcrowded condition of the White House.

More Experts in Boiling Case.

Washington, Dec. 7.—More experts were put on the stand to-day at the trial of Mrs. Lois Ida Bonline for the murder of James Seymour Ayres, Jr., to prove the existence of blood on Mrs. Bonline's garments and also to contradict the testimony of the deputy coroner regarding the effect of gunshot wounds as determining the nearness of an object to the weapon at the time of its discharge. This is regarded as one of the important points of the case.

Crushing a Lawyer.

De Wolfe Hopper was once a witness in a suit for slander, and the opposing counsel in the courtroom said: "You are an actor, I believe?" "Yes," replied Hopper. "Is not that a law calling?" "I don't know, but it's so much better than my father's that I am rather proud of it." "What was your father's calling, may I ask?" "He was a lawyer," said Hopper.

CONGRESS WILL HASTEN CANAL

Senate Committee Unanimously in Favor of Hay-Paunczofe Treaty.

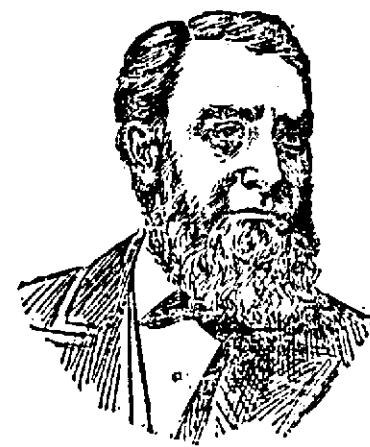

BE RATIFIED SOON

Bills for Construction Introduced in Both House and Senate.

TO WAIVE OBJECTIONS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—The action of the foreign relations committee of the senate today in unanimously agreeing to report favorably the Hay-Paunczofe treaty indicates the spirit of congress in favor of speedy work on canal question.

The committee discussed every phase of the treaty, and while objections were expressed in the neutrality article, the treaty was agreed upon by a unanimous vote, and it will be so reported to the senate next Monday. Senator Cullom will move an executive session on Monday, and continue to insist on such sessions until the treaty is disposed of.

Ratified Next Week

There is the same spirit in the senate as shown in the committee. There are minor objections but they will be waived to clear the desks for legislative action on the canal. The treaty will in all probability be ratified next week.

Speaker Henderson has been urged to appoint a committee on interstate and foreign commerce at once, that the bill introduced by Representative Hepburn may be referred to it and brought before the house with a favorable report. Senator Morgan and Senator Perkins of California have introduced canal bills in the senate, but the house will pass a bill before the senate, and the bill will be the basis of legislation.

Text of Hepburn's Bill

Hepburn's bill is similar to that which passed the House in May, differing only in the appropriation. It authorizes an appropriation of $180,000,000, instead of $140,000,000 in the former bill, but makes only $10,000,000 available to begin the work. It authorizes the president to acquire a right of way from Costa Rica and Nicaragua, and then to direct the Secretary of War to begin the construction.

Hepburn will again be the chairman of the committee on interstate and foreign commerce, and when it is appointed, the committee will report the bill favorably. There will be no other debate than a number of speeches to allow members to go on record in favor of the canal.

The bill will pass the house without opposition and then go to the senate, where the differences regarding the Morgan bill and the Perkins bill will be adjusted.

LAUGHED UNTIL HE MIGHT DIE

Westville, Ind., Man Rips His Linings While Cachinnating, and His Condition is Serious.

Laporte, Ind., Dec. 7.—If Bert Plogel of Westville, this county, recovers he will eschew laughing. Yesterday his risibilities were affected so hard the inner membranes were torn loose from his lower ribs, according to the claims of the attending physician. He is in a serious condition.

D. A. R. REGENTS
AT MILWAUKEEAnnual Meeting Held—Janesville
Ladies Present—Will Give a Colonial Tea.

Mrs. Ogden H. Fethers, Mrs. E. O. Kimberley and Mrs. M. G. Jeffris were in Milwaukee yesterday to attend the annual meeting of the Wisconsin Daughters of the American Revolution which was held yesterday morning at the home of Mrs. James Syney Peck, the state regent, 5 Waverly place. The visiting regents and delegates from cities and towns in the state together with a number of Milwaukee members of the society, were afterwards entertained at luncheon by Mrs. Peck. Mrs. Kimberley enjoyed the distinctive honor and the pleasure of being associated with several Milwaukee ladies who assisted Mrs. Peck in receiving her guests.

At the meeting reports were received from the various chapters and favorable action was taken upon a recommendation from the national society that each chapter give a colonial tea or some similar entertainment on January 17, which was Washington's wedding day, for the purpose of raising funds for the proposed wishes to erect in the national memorial hall, which the society wishes to erect in the national capital.

Application were received from Waukesha, Plymouth and Delavan for the establishment of new chapters at those points, which were represented at the meeting.

Mrs. George Champion of Oshkosh, a sister-in-law of Peter Champion died in her home in that city Thursday night after a brief illness with pneumonia. The bereaved husband formerly resided in this city.

The repairs of the water heating system at the Y. M. C. A. were completed last evening and the plant is now in shape to accommodate the members who wish to bathe. The delay in getting the plant running again was caused by the inability of the plumbers to get some of the broken parts.

The friends of Martin Timmons, 104 Dodge street, treated him to a pleasant surprise at his home Thursday evening. The evening was passed playing progressive euchre. The first prize fell to William Connell and the ladies' prize to Agnes Smith. Some excellent vocal and instrumental music was rendered during the evening and added much to the enjoyment of the guests. Dauntless refreshments were served.

Buy bed blankets here; it will pay you. T. P. Burns.

The big sixty-foot derrick in use at the city hall got beyond the control of the workmen yesterday while it was being moved onto Wall street and fell over. No one was hurt and no damage was done beyond breaking all the wires of the Postal Telegraph company, which are strung along Wall street. For some time their entire circuit was shut off, but later in the day they got two wires in working order so business could be carried on.

GROCERS SAY DOGS ARE A NUISANCE

Several of the grocers are complaining about pet dogs that accompany people into their stores. Necessarily goods of different sorts must be displayed in the open pails, boxes, etc., on the floor and therefore are hard to the muzzles of the dogs and unless the owner of the animal keeps a sharp eye on him he either eats or steals some of the contents of the various receptacles and of course the next customer for any of these goods derives the benefit of the dog's nose, providing the grocer does not happen to catch the dog in the act and pick out the affected goods. One grocer in particular who has quantities of candies in pails on his floor says that pet dogs are the bane of his life and he wishes owners would leave them outside or at home when they go marketing. Out of consideration for other customers, if not for the grocer, this would seem a good idea.

Chapter No. 60, O. E. S.

Janesville chapter No. 60, O. E. S., held an enjoyable meeting last evening in Masonic hall for the purpose of exemplifying the work of the order. The officers who were chosen six years ago when the lodge was organized performed the work, and all but three of the original set were at this meeting.

The meeting was called for six o'clock and at 6:30 all were invited to be seated at a repast such as the ladies of the lodge are noted for. After the banquet the work of the evening was taken up and carried out in a way that showed that the officers had not forgotten their teachings.

The present officers of the lodge had arranged for a dancing party and the evening's pleasures would up with a social dance.

CLOUGH FRANCHISE AT ELKHORN, WIS.

At a meeting of the city council on Tuesday evening the Clough electric franchise was laid over until the January meeting. Mr. Hill, the representative of the road was present and stated that at the meeting with the street committee and city attorney held on Friday they had failed to agree upon certain provisions embodied in the application as made by Mr. Clough, and asked that the city have a franchise drawn, such as would be acceptable to the council, and send it to Mr. Clough in the country built for paupers and orphans is fitted up with steam heat, hot and cold water, and the matrons take great pride in showing visitors the bathrooms with all the modern improvements. And it is not strange that girls who work for their living would like a few of these privileges that are given to those who are living on charity. It is not too much to assume that the girls who live in our homes and who cook our meat and bread for us to eat may possibly have the same ambitions to keep clean and comfortable as those who are living in charitable institutions. It is not going beyond the bounds of all reason to suppose that if a girl is earning her living she has a natural desire to be self-respecting and might like a closet to keep her clothes where the moth and dust do not corrupt; that she may like an opportunity to take a bath once in a while and that she may enjoy a decent room.

There are two points in particular upon which the city and Mr. Clough's representative have failed to agree. In the first place Clough asks for two years upon which to begin work upon the line. This is a year longer than was granted the Janesville road, a franchise for which was given the city two weeks ago. In the second place Mr. Clough asks right of way across the power house grounds at the depot. This is objectionable for the reason that the grounds are small and the city may desire them for other use later on. There is also a difference in regard to keeping the streets in repair. City Attorney Nelson and the street committee will draw a franchise as would be acceptable to the city and forward to Mr. Clough next week. It is probable that it will contain practically the same provisions as the one granted the Janesville road. Whether this will be acceptable to Mr. Clough is a question.—Elkhorn Independent.

ON BOYS AND GIRLS BORN SHORT

"Born Short" was the unique subject of the lecture given by William Hawley Smith at the High school building last evening as one of the attractions on the High school lecture course and as the opening of the annual meeting of the Rock County Teachers' Association, which convened in this city today. In one way it was a little unfortunate that Mr. Smith's lecture had been made to serve this double purpose for he was handicapped by his effort to entertain the children and still voice the educational message which he had brought to parents and teachers. His lecture was necessarily one in which children were not interested except when he made an extra effort to speak to them but the speaker held his audience plendly and the children deserve great credit for the quiet and respectful attention which they gave.

Mr. Smith's lecture was a plea for children who are born short or who are deficient in some one line. Only five out of every one hundred pupils who enter the public schools ever graduate and the need of today is to try and find some way to give the best educational advantages to all people. That most people are born short is a fact, not a theory. Some are born short in some things and long in others.

Four Territories Seeking Admission.

There are now four territories seeking admission into the Union as states and according to all precedents they have a better chance of succeeding in the matter in Congress, especially in advance of a presidential election, if they are of the same politics as the dominant party in Washington. Of the four, three, Oklahoma, New Mexico and the Indian Territory are generally regarded as Republican, and only one, Arizona, as Democratic.—New York Sun.

New Fight on Railroad Merger.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 7.—The Pioneer Press says: "The members of the Minnesota state railroad and warehouse commission will go to Washington to confer with the Interstate commerce commissioners on a method of procedure in seconding Gov. Van Sant's fight against the proposed railway merger as contemplated by the Northern Securities company."

To Give Cherokee $285,000.

Tahlequah, Ind., T. Dec. 7.—The Cherokee national council has passed a relief bill authorizing the distribution of $285,000 among the Cherokees. This will make a per capita payment of about $10. The principal chief has approved the bill and it will be sent at once to the president of the United States for his approval.

Would Reopen War Claims.

Pana, Ill., Dec. 7.—T. J. Smith, the defaulter city clerk of Pana, was arrested yesterday, awaiting the action of the grand jury. His shortage, it is alleged, will amount to $2,000.

SERVANT GIRLS' ROOMS.

Domestic Are Entitled to More Comfortable Sleeping Apartments.

The servant girls throughout the country are asking that comfortable sleeping apartments be assigned them. As a rule the bedroom of the "lived girl" is the most cheerless and contracted in the house and it is no wonder that she seeks to fly from it on every occasion that she receives an invitation to spend an evening elsewhere. Every charitable institution in the country built for paupers and orphans is fitted up with steam heat, hot and cold water, and the matrons take great pride in showing visitors the bathrooms with all the modern improvements. And it is not strange that girls who work for their living would like a few of these privileges that are given to those who are living on charity. It is not too much to assume that the girls who live in our homes and who cook our meat and bread for us to eat may possibly have the same ambitions to keep clean and comfortable as those who are living in charitable institutions. It is not going beyond the bounds of all reason to suppose that if a girl is earning her living she has a natural desire to be self-respecting and might like a closet to keep her clothes where the moth and dust do not corrupt; that she may like an opportunity to take a bath once in a while and that she may enjoy a decent room.

J.M. BOSTWICK & SONS.

Wrapper News

We have an overstock of wrappers. Many of them have only been in the store a few weeks. At our regular prices they are very good values, in fact the best obtainable. Notice the reductions:

$1.50 Wrappers for $1.35.

$1.75 Wrappers for $1.45.

$2.00 Wrappers for $1.65.

Sizes 32 to 46, in calico, percale and flannelette.

Zaza Quiltings.

We offer 50 pieces of comforter prints, correct imitation of hand pieced comforters such as our grandmothers made. The cloth is 31 inches wide, fine and heavy; many decided novelties; price 10c.

Holdfast Over-Gaiters.

Just the thing for cold weather and a great improvement over the old style knit leggings. We have them in Melton, Kersey and Silk, black and fancy.

For Women, at $1.25 and $1.50.

For Misses, in Kersey, at $1.25.

For Girls, in Melton, at 85c.

For Children, in Melton, at 50c.

For Boys, in Canvas, at 85c.

They are made with the patent tie which slips under the shoe and are laced up on the side, over hooks, thus buttons are done away with. Can be slipped off in a jiffy.

For Dens and Cosy Corners

In our upholstery section in south store we show an immense collection of Oriental Novelties for decorating purposes. Hundreds of creations in drapes, pillow tops, curtains, couch covers, table covers, small pieces, and yard goods that are not high.

WAR RELICS—Officers' Swords, 40 inches long, in leather scabbards, brass mounted, with brass hilt and shield; made of finest steel have been in use and are in very good condition. A pair of these swords would make a very desirable holiday present—$1.50.

Anatolia Rugs

Beautiful styles direct from the Orient. They are not only used for rugs but are quite the thing for table covers. The sizes are 1 ft. 6 in. x 3 2, 1 10x3 1.9x2.9, 2x2.4, 1.9x2.3, 1.10x2.6, &c., at $5.00 to $10.

To please the little folks we will give to every mother who has a little girl and who purchases Munsing Underwear, for herself or any of the family, a doll's silk shirt made by the manufacturers of The Munsing Underwear. This applies only on purchases from December 2nd.

Where are you going my pretty maid?

I'm going to "Bostwick's" sir, she said.

And why today my little maid?

To get my little dolly a vest she said.

New Silk Umbrellas

Just received a large assortment of silk umbrellas for holiday selling. Particular attention was given to selecting pretty handles, although quality was not lost sight of.

Our $1.00 umbrellas are the best ever offered at the price. All prices above $1.00 to $6.00. At $1.50, $2.00, $2.50, rare values.

For Men we have many excellent numbers. Select one or more now for Christmas while our stock is so complete.

FURS

We keep a little ahead of the procession. Have received several lots of scarfs, sets, nearseal jackets, misses' and children's sets, &c., recently. One of the greatest stocks of furs in the northwest right at your door. We take orders for genuine seal coats and guarantee a saving of 75 to 100 dollars. Any woman ordering a seal coat is fully protected as we have a thoroughly reliable manufacturer back of us. Our experience with seal garments has been eminently satisfactory.

CANON AGAIN ON APPROPRIATIONS

Famous Illinois Member Again the Head of the Best Committee—House Ready for Business.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—Joseph G. Cannon of Illinois, again heads the house committee on appropriations:

At 12:06 p. m. the house adjourned until Tuesday.

It is likely the speaker will be able to announce all the committees before adjournment for the holidays, so the house will be ready for business when it meets in January. Mr. Foss will be reappointed chairman of naval affairs and Mr. Hitt of foreign relations. Mr. Boutell will remain on coinage weights and measures, Mann on interstate and foreign commerce, Werner on judiciary, Reeves on rivers and harbors and Graff on immigration.

The ways and means committee will report a bill for a Philippine tariff similar to the one Senator Lodge introduced. The house measure will have right of way, as all revenue measures originate in the house. Lodge's measure provides that the tariff devised by the Philippine commission shall remain in force until otherwise ordered, and all receipts be expended in the islands.

The Democrats are beginning to complain about the salaries paid officers connected with the insular government, charging that they are exorbitantly high. The fact that Judge Taft, president of the commission, receives $20,000 a year is a special cause of grievance for the minority.

Sheepmen in Combine.

A gigantic combine is being formed at Rawlins, Wyo., by the sheepmen of what is known as the Sweetwater country for the purpose of excluding Utah stockmen and local cattlemen from encroaching upon what is known as the Red Desert winter ranges in Sweetwater valley. It is proposed to lease and buy from the Union Pacific every alternate section which is owned by the company, and thereby control approximately 1,500,000 acres of the finest winter feeding ground in the West. By leasing all the land, which will give them control of alternate government sections, the sheepmen will hold full control and range conflicts which have been frequent will come to an end. The sheepmen who purpose to lease the land offered the railroad company a rate of 1 cent an acre, or $4,800 a year, for the land. The proposition has been wired to the Union Pacific general land office at Omaha, and it is expected that the deal will be closed in a few days.

Warships to Leave Isthmus.
Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—Secretary Long has ordered Captain Perry of the battleship Iowa, now at Panama, to proceed down the Chilean coast to Talcahuano, where the ship is to be docked and overhauled. He has also ordered Commander McCrea of the gunboat Machias, at Colon, to bring his vessel north, stopping at San Juan and Porto Rico, on her way home, for coal. The gunboats Marietta, at Colon, and Concord, at Panama, will remain at their respective stations for a time and then they, too, will leave the isthmus if affairs retain their present quiet aspect.

Siam's Minister Arrives.
Washington, Dec. 7.—Phya Akhara Oradhrana is the name of the envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of His Majesty the King of Siam, and has just arrived in this country. He is accompanied by his English secretary, Edward Lotus, and will present his credentials to President Roosevelt at the first opportunity. He is the first diplomatic representative from the land of the White Elephant to be stationed in Washington.

Sullivan's Minstrel Troupe Stranded.
Ogdensburg, N. Y., Dec. 7.—A minstrel troupe, headed by John L. Sullivan, the old prize fighter, stranded at Massena last night after being on the road four days, touring small towns in the northern part of New York. Sullivan had been staying at Massena for several weeks and the company started from there on Monday last. The sheriff refused to let Sullivan spar.

Red Hot Sport Wins Bet.
Pittston, Pa., Dec. 7.—Buck Campbell, who is manager for a pugilist, lies in a dangerous condition, the result of a wager with another sporting man named Lieberman as to who could sit on a hot radiator the longest. Campbell won the stake, but it may cost him his life.

Alderman Fights for Cow.
Iron Mountain, Mich., Dec. 7.—Alderman Harvey and Poundmaster Brockington came to blows over the impounding of a cow belonging to the former. Brockington has entered complaints, and the alderman will be tried on the charge of interfering with an officer in the discharge of his duties.

Southern Belle Cremated.
New Orleans, Dec. 7.—In a fire at Bayou Des Allemandes, La., at midnight, Miss May Ernest, aged 17, and Flossie Delabretonne, aged 2 years, were burned to death. They are prominently connected in New Orleans.

Starch Factory Burned Down.
Des Moines, Iowa, Dec. 7.—The Des Moines branch of the National Starch company, one of the largest plants controlled by that corporation, burned to the ground last evening, causing an estimated loss of $300,000.

Indiana Village Fire Swept.
Hartford City, Ind., Dec. 7.—The little village of Mill Grove, six miles east of here, was visited by the worst fire in its history Wednesday night. The loss will amount to several thousand dollars.

Famous Stock Man Bankrupt.
Fergus Falls, Minn., Dec. 7.—H. P. Clark of the famous Clark stock farm has filed a petition in bankruptcy. His assets are scheduled at $150 and his liabilities at $687,000.

Mrs. Nation's Paper Suspends.
Topeka, Kan., Dec. 7.—"The Smashers' Mail" has gone out of existence. It was known as Mrs. Carrie Nation's paper, and it is announced that it did not pay.

Peru to Adopt Gold Standard.
Lima, Peru, Dec. 7 (via Galveston, Tex.)—The chamber of deputies yesterday sanctioned the gold-standard law, which has already passed the senate.

Plague Cases at Rio.
New York, Dec. 7.—A dispatch from Rio Janeiro says there were four new cases of the plague and one death from the disease in that city Tuesday.

Foulke to Be Commissioner.
Washington, Dec. 7.—The Senate has confirmed the nomination of William Dudley Foulke to be civil service commissioner.

Execution in Northwest.
Stevenson, Wash., Dec. 7.—James G. Green was hanged here this morning for the murder of E. O. Benjamin last March.

General A. C. Fuller Dies.
Belvidere, Ill., Dec. 7.—General Allen C. Fuller, one of the most widely known attorneys of northern Illinois, died suddenly at 1 o'clock p. m., at his home in Belvidere, Ill., aged 79. General Fuller had been ailing for some weeks, but his relatives did not consider his complaint serious. He returned here several weeks ago from his summer home in Bayfield, Wis. General Fuller was adjutant general on the staff of Governor Yates during the war and afterward was elected several times to the legislature. He also served one term as speaker of the house.

2,479 Nominations Made.
Washington, Dec. 7.—The record for nominations was broken yesterday when President Roosevelt sent to the senate for its "advice and consent" the names of 2,479 persons. The aggregate represented the accumulation of appointments made during the recess of congress since March 4 last, together with a dozen or so that have been appointed by Mr. Roosevelt since congress met. Of the total number 1,795 were promotions and appointments in the army, 262 were in the navy, 279 postmasters, and 133 miscellaneous appointments in various departments.

Live Stock Men Act.
Chicago, Dec. 7.—At the session of the National Live Stock convention today the possibilities of irrigation were described by George H. Maxwell, chairman of the executive committee of the National Irrigation association. He declared that once the arid lands are watered, springs and wells will be found.

Resolutions were passed favoring the continuation of the government fight on poisonous weeds; in memory of the late Kirk B. Armour, formerly a member of the association; endorsing the agricultural colleges; recommending the forestry reserve law be amended, and opposition to state laws requiring inspection of cattle taken into the state from other states of the Union.

The convention adjourned to meet next year in Kansas City. Portland, Oregon, was the only other contender for the sixth convention of the organization, but Kansas City won easily by a vote of 1,221 to 555.

Murder by Safeblowers.
Marshalltown, Ia., Dec. 7.—Night Marshal J. B. Smith of Chelsea was shot in the head by three robbers early this morning and died two hours later. The robbers were discovered by the officer while attempting to break into the bank, and in an exchange of shots Smith was killed. The robbers made their escape west on a hand car.

Poisoned at Wedding.

Prairie du Sac, Wis., Dec. 7.—Sixty-five persons were poisoned at a wedding feast at the home of John Mulky, at West Point, near this place. It is declared there was poison in the coffee. The guests are in a critical condition.

GREAT SIX DAY RACE IN NEW YORK, DEC. 9-15.

Many Famous Foreign Fliers to Push Pedals for Both Glory and Cash.

The annual six day cycle race will begin in Madison Square Garden, New York, Dec. 9. As it is an international event unusual interest is being manifested in the contest. The foreign teams which arrived on the side about two weeks ago are now applying the finishing touches to their training operations, and they are sure to give the American cracks a hard, fast fight for honors and cash.

The great continuous cycling carnival has become one of the most popular athletic features of the year, and huge crowds of enthusiasts flock to New York during its progress. The two months of inactivity following the close of the outdoor season have caused lovers of pedal pushing to consider themselves sufferers at the hands of fate. The six day contest, however, soothes their feelings, giving them a splendid opportunity to enjoy a feast of the cycle racing enthusiast's favorite pastime.

After a careful sizing up of the personnel and records of the European scorers the conclusion is reached that they require careful and serious consideration. Most of the men have appeared on American tracks before, and their ability consequently is more or less familiar to followers of racing. Other of the many climbers who have yet to make their initial appearance before the American public are said by authoritative persons to be of very dangerous caliber. So let our boys beware of the invaders.

The transatlantic speed merchants who have entered for the week's grueling race are as follows:

Gouglitz and Simar, France; Chevalier and Fisher, Switzerland; Muller and Le Poutre, Italy; De Roek and Kerf, Belgium, and Frederick and Jaak, Germany.

Gouglitz and Simar, it will be remembered, were only a lap behind the winners last year and furnished considerable excitement throughout the week by their remarkable sprinting in an endeavor to shake off their fast flying opponents. Fisher and Chevalier took part in the 1899 race and created the sensation of the week by stealing the only laps gained in that manner throughout the battle. By furious well timed spurts they killed off one after another of their rivals. Muller rode here before, but with an incapable partner. This year his team mate is one of the best long distance men on the continent. Le Poutre is no stranger to the six day race either, having on several occasions astonished Europe by his stam.

Frederick has frequently ridden in this country. He has a better partner than has ever before been the case. He and his mate, Hans Jaak, champion of Germany, will give their competitors a lively "run for the money." De Roek and Kerf are two of the best cyclists ever produced in Belgium. They have excellent chances for victory.

A series of introductory races will be run off in Madison Square Garden Dec. 7, the Saturday night preceding the big event. These contests will serve as an appetizer for the six day racers. The preliminary meet will also serve to familiarize the public with the foreign riders.

The track, now in course of construction, will be banked to a height of about sixteen feet. Last summer's planked course proved a source of danger to many cyclists, and the new "skimming dish" is planned to rise at an easier angle.

The Case of Frank Wilton. 2,000-1-4.

The most celebrated ringing case of this year will come up at the December boards of both the National and the American Trotting associations. The real name of the horse is Frank Wilton, 2,000-1/4, who within the last eight weeks has raced in slow classes under the name of Ormus, Frank Derby, Brooklyn Boy and Philey Ross. He has been stopped and exposed, supposed owner and driver expelled, but he soon bobs up serenely at some other track under a new name and will probably continue so to do till the end of the season. In Germany or France the man would be arrested and the horse confiscated. They do things better there in such cases.

Gold Toothed Pacer.

Moth Miller, 2,07, is probably the only pacer in the world that munches oats with a gold tooth. Dr. David Randall of New York, his owner, recently put a gold crown on one of the horse's nippers.

RIGHTS OF SCIENTISTS.

They Give Way in Germany Only to Members of the Royal Family.

The street railways of Berlin have recently been fitting their lines with electricity, following years in the wake of those of the United States. The directors of the Reichsanstalt, the imperial physical and technical institute of Germany, feared that the proximity of trolley wires with the magnetic field which would be set up at the passage of every car might interfere with their experiments and they made representations to that effect to the government. In Germany science is esteemed only second to royalty and the government being all-powerful the street railroads were ordered not to place any trolley wires within a kilometer (five-eighths of a mile) of the Reichsanstalt. As a result, and oddly enough it is to an American, the trolley lines of Charlottenburg, when the approach of the imperial mausoleum, the emperor's memorial church and the Reichsanstalt—royalty and science—are run underground and the cars are compelled to cover the intervals by means of power drawn from storage batteries. Asphalt pavements have also replaced the old cobblestones in the streets around the Reichsanstalt to prevent the jar of trucks from influencing the delicate instruments in the buildings.

How to Cure Croup.

Mr. R. Gray, who lives near America, Duchess county, N. Y., says: "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best medicine I have ever used. It is a fine childrens' remedy for croup and never fails to cure." When given as soon as a child becomes hoarse, or even after the croup cough has developed it will prevent the attack. This should be borne in mind and bottle of the Cough Remedy kept at hand ready for instant use as soon as the symptoms appear. For sale by Peoples' Drug Store and King's Pharmacy.

Sues Neighbor for Raising Mosquitoes.

A man in Chappaqua, N. Y., has sued his neighbor for damages because the neighbor built a dam on his premises, creating a pond which has since been a breeding place for mosquitoes. The man who sues says that there never were any mosquitoes around his place until this dam was built.

If you would have an appetite like a bear and a relish for your meals take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They correct disorders of the stomach and regulate the liver and bowels. Price, 25c. Samples free at Peoples' Drug Store and King's Pharmacy.

Our Kaiser's Parades.
In the twenty-odd palaces of the German Emperor some 3,500 servants are employed, about 2,000 of these being women. A huge income is, of course, required for keeping up establishments on this scale, and the Emperor's total expenditure is estimated at some $25,000 a day.

OUR LAY SERMON.

H. W. Tilton, editor of the Council Bluffs' Nonpareil, has been writing a lay sermon for his Sunday paper for a number of years. The Gazette is pleased to reproduce one of recent date which will be read with interest by Mr. Tilton's many friends in Janesville:

"Oh, de w'or' we on
Is a turnin' roun',
Don't get dizzy
W'en you upside down!"

"Up from the South comes this voice of some dusk philosopher who has more truth than poetry in his rude crooning.

"It's a sad thing for a man when he loses his head—much sadder than to lose your pocket book—although many prize money so much more than brains. And it is even easier for a man to lose his head than his pocketbook for 'de w'or' we on is a turnin' roun', and we find ourselves so often upside down.

"We scarce open our eyes to catch the smile of sunshine on the face of morning before the sombre nurse of nighttime steps between us and bids us sleep again. Even as we look up into the blue sky the dark clouds gather and there is only left to us here and there a star. We no sooner gather the harvest than the storehouses are empty and it is time to plant again. We are forever busy either putting up or taking down stoves and the ice box is no sooner emptied than it is time to fill up the coal bin, and we hardly get the screens in before it is time to take them out and put up the storm windows, and we hardly catch a frost before we catch flies again, for 'de w'or' we on is a turnin' roun'."

"But, we can't stop it and so what are we going to do about it? 'Git dizzy' and lose our heads? It is easy for one to see in the routine of humble life only the 'damned horrid grind,' but what is easy is not always best. One who thus looks on life as simply an almanac recording the rising and setting of the sun, the following of night by day, the 'thirty days has September,' and the leap year which gives one more, finds life dry reading. The hands on the old clock go round and round with a monotonous click, and yet no click so like the other that it does not bring some new pencilling of color to the flower, some new tendrill to the clinging vine, some new drapery to the fleecy cloud, some new twinkle to the star, some new whisper to the breeze, some new note to human voice, some new hope to the heart, some new thrill to the soul. But we 'git dizzy' and lose our heads and so we do not see the changing beauties and do not hear the changing melodies but look out on what we deem the same dull old landscape and listen to what we deem the same dreary humdrum of the old wheels.

"There's the one, too, who loses his head, gets dizzy, and thinks the old world is going too fast. He may not be an old fogey. He may be a young fog, for all fogies are not old, although we generally speak of them as such. The steadiness of one's head is not always to be told by the number of silver threads. But while fogism is the child of thought, and not of time, it is more natural for one from whom the passing years have carried away much of his firmness of limb to guard more cautiously his footsteps and to venture more carefully on a new pathway. But such a one should bear in mind that instead of the world going too fast, possibly he is getting too slow. He should recall the days when the 'three r's' were the essentials in the little red school house when he earned his initials on the rude bench and how grammar was looked on as a fad and something that might do for 'city folk,' and algebra as fit only for college, fellows to study. Yes, the old world has turned around several times since then and brought many changes and it is still turning and bringing other changes, but it isn't turning any faster than it was then, and the changes now being changes then being wrought. It is all in the seeming, just as it seems to the grandfather in the arm chair that it isn't so long between birthdays as it used to be when he was a boy. No, don't get dizzy and fail to see things as they are. Perhaps instead of the world going too fast you are going too slow."

"As the world goes around it turns us all upside down. The little bundle of humanity softly snuggled and tenderly cuddled in the arms of the wearied mother as she watches over and cares for helpless infancy through the long hours of the night is now a maiden fair and tall, with beauty in her face and music in her voice, for the old world we're on has been turning around. Happy is that mother if that maiden has learned to be as careful to keep her head on straight as to keep her hat on straight. If that maiden's brain has not become dizzy she will see that the world in turning around has caused mother and daughter to change places and that now the one who watched through the weary night should rest through the glad day.

"There is no turning over of the old world which is so apt to cause one to become dizzy as that which changes boyhood to manhood. Steady indeed needs be the thought of the lad who does not find himself wavering and wobbly, leaning with too much dependence upon the strength of father, or breaking away and burying on too hastily with that pride which goeth before a fall. How to keep self-poised is the most puzzling problem on the slate of boyhood. It is the trial balance of life, more perplexing than any he will find in his bookkeeping of after years. The passing from the control of one's own self is the crossing of a chasm on a narrow plank. It is hard for a lad to begin thinking for himself without thinking that he can think better than the old man thinks. Yet he cannot always let father and mother and teacher and preacher do his thinking for him. He must learn to handle his own thought just as he learns to handle his own hair brush, little by little, and to stand before the mirror of his own judgment and decide for himself.

"Childhood cries out in pain, as its toddling feet make a misstep and it falls. It is simply learning one of the many lessons of life which have to be learned while tears drop on the page. Every bump and bruise teaches something more about that wonderful law of gravitation which governs alike the baby and the sire, the violet and the mountain, the dewdrop and the torrent, and so in that greater world there is one mighty law which is forever seeking to keep human hearts in proper place—the law of love. When we fall and hurt ourselves it is because we have not yet learned how to walk. When we find ourselves growing dizzy it is the warning message lest we violate that law of love and feel harm and pain. Happy the one who in the nursery so learns by help of loving hands so to take the footstep and to gather strength as to take no less sure footstep when, those helpful hands are folded in the long rest. There will be no dizziness then when the time comes for daughter to lead tired mother to the rocking chair in the corner while the youthful vigor takes up the duties of the home and the music of maiden's voice cheers the ear of old age with the lullaby of the years long passed, for while the world has gone around and around, turning all upside down, the great love of love has kept each in place. The world has turned over and the boy finds himself in the man's place and the man finds himself in the boy's place, but each still feels his heart throbbing with the same old love. The morning may seem much like last night, there may be the same rising to labor and the same lying down to rest, but there will be no dreary humdrum to the ear which love attunes to hear the new note in the morning song and no sameness to the night to the eye which sees love, pointing to the new evening star."

BITS FROM THE MESSAGE.
The true end of every great and free people should be self-respecting peace.

Prosperity can never be created by law alone, although it is easy enough to destroy it by mischievous laws.

Disaster to great business enterprises can never have its effects limited to the men at the top.

Hatred and fear when combined with ignorance uplift men for the exercise of cool and steady judgment.

The American people are slow to wrath, but when their wrath is once kindled it burns like a consuming flame.

Whether we desire it or not we must henceforth recognize that we have international duties no less than international rights.

The connection between idleness and mischief is proverbial, and the opportunity to do remunerative work is one of the surest preventives of war.

American wage workers work with their heads as well as with their hands. That is the great secret of our success in competition with the labor of foreign countries.

It should be as much the aim of those who seek for social betterment to rid the business world of crimes of cunning as to rid the entire body politic of crimes of violence.

Great corporations exist only because they are created and safeguarded by our institutions; and it is therefore our right and duty to see that they work in harmony with these institutions.

The anarchist not a "product of social conditions," save as a highwayman is "produced" by the fact that an unarmed man happens to have a purse.

The personal equation is the most important factor in a business operation; the business ability of man at the head of any business concern is usually the factor which fixes the gulf between striking success and hopeless failure.

A Floating Cobbler's Shop.

A floating cobbler's shop is one of the features of the Penobscot Bay Island life. Capt. W. O. Cottle, in his sloop, Yankee Nation, going from place to place and giving attention to mending old shoes and boots which the people may save up for his coming. Capt. Cottle has a new dog as a companion to take the place of Jip, who was with him for many years.

NURSEMAIDS BEHIND BRITISH RECRUITS.

General Buller once explained why it was necessary to put such showy clothing on most of the troops: "Because a showy uniform attracts Mary Ann, the nursemaid, who makes Tom Atkins join the army. In plain uniforms, you would find recruiting a harder job than ever."

A melodrama in four acts is the usual attraction at Wallack's theater in this city. Augustus Thomas confesses to the authorship, while the managerial sponsor is Charles Frohman. The play is "Colorado." Mr. Thomas, as is well known, has a fondness for naming his dramas for the different states of the Union, and hitherto it has generally been admitted that he has succeeded in catching the atmosphere of the locality selected for exploitation. "In "Colorado," however, er, it is admitted, even by his friends that he has not been so successful in this respect and that the play, with equal regard for the proprieties, might be called "Malue" or "Oho" or "Pennsylvania."

It cannot be denied, however, that "Colorado" is "realistic" in the latter day melodramatic sense. In the first place, the scene is laid in the mountains, where there is an abundance of scenery lying around loose, so to speak, and where the air is keen and re-eupheric. The hero of the play is young, of course, and he is virile, though somewhat unsophisticated, as shown, for instance, when he allows himself to be bunkered out of his mining interests by the chief villain, one Colonel Kincaid, who asserts that said hero, Frank Austin, is a deserter from the army. By working on the feelings of the latter's father-in-law to be Kincaid gains his point. But he doesn't gain the lovely heroine, Kitty Doyle, who is Frank's particular star and a mountain maiden after one's own heart. In common with every member of the company, she carries her "gun," and, what is more to the point, she knows how to use it.

The chief disturbing elements in the situation is Mrs. Kincaid, who seems to think her rascally husband attractive enough to engage Mrs. Doyle in a flirtation and who reveals the supposed condition of affairs to Mr. Doyle, at which the latter tries to abandon his wife and daughter at the bottom of the mine. He is foiled, as are the two villains, Kincaid and Staples, and at the end all comes out serenely, with Frank and Kitty the cynosures of all eyes and the central figures of admiring and bolsterous miners.

It has latterly come to be the fashion for two sections of the press of this country and Europe to refer to Henry Irving from time to time as a man who has done wonders for the development of budding histrio-nomic genius. These two sections consist of the newspapers which are sycophantic and of those which are ignorant and follow wherever the sycophants lead. Of course any well informed person is aware that Mr. Irving is a developer of crude but talented players, if we assume that he is in that class. But if we accept the general estimate of Irving's ability we cannot admit that he has ever done anything to make the beginner's struggle easier and his rise more rapid. In short, there is probably no prominent actor in the world who has done so little for the members of his company in the way of recognizing the merit of their work, thereby giving them the benefit of the publicity to which their achievements have entitled them.

It is announced that Cecilia Loftus, the ex-milme who won fame on the vaudeville stage as Olsey Loftus and later became E. H. Sothern's leading woman, had been engaged by Mr. Irving to play certain roles which Miss Terry no longer desires to undertake. The whisper was communicated to Miss Loftus, and she promptly confirmed its accuracy, not knowing at the time that Irving had denied it. Whether or not this will end the matter time alone can tell, but for something very similar a certain young American actor was promptly laid up on the shelf by Irving and later, in sheer desperation, gave up the contract which entitled him to his salary whether he worked or not. No; depend upon it, the young actors of America and England will never contribute to a statue of Irving in order to commemorate their gratitude to the man who is referred to by his friends as "the greatest living English speaking actor" despite the fact that those same friends must be aware of the continued existence upon this mundane sphere of Beerbohm Tree, Richard Mansfield, Forbes Robertson, Martin Harvey, E. H. Sothern, Lewis Waller and several others of about equal ability.

A prominent London writer, who, while he is not an ardent admirer of the "actor knight," is nevertheless in no way vindictive, rehearses Henry Irving's connection with players who have since become prominent, and it must be admitted that he makes a strong case. According to this gentleman, "William Terriss, who was connected with the Lyceum off and on for something like a quarter of a century, obtained from Irving only two opportunities of real distinction—the parts of King Henry VIII. in Shakespeare and Fletcher's play and of King Henry II. in Tennyson's "Becket." Otherwise his big hits were all made in Adelphi melodrama. Miss Emery, again, had no decent parts assigned her at the Lyceum. The critics in England and in America recognized her talent, but Henry Irving did nothing to reveal or to develop it, and it was Tom Thorne and Robert Buchanan who gave this clever lady her chance. Alexander, I admit, was a favorite of Irving's, so he was allowed to play Nemours in "Louis XI." Caleb Deane in "Two Roses," Faust in "Will's" play and Macduff in "Macbeth." But Alexander is the only one of Irving's young men who gained any reputation under Irving's management.

"What does the future leader owe to the present leader of our stage? Two minor Shakespearian roles, those of Claudio in "Much Ado About Nothing" and of Buckingham in "King Henry VIII." for when he played Lancelot in "King Arthur" Forbes Robertson was, of course, fulfilling a star engagement. Fane Irving having so fine an actor as Robertson a member of his company for a whole year (1892) and being content to let him deliver twenty lines of a farewell speech when he might have had him play Orlando to his Jacques, Othello to his Iago, Brutus to his Cassius. It was Samuel Phelps indeed who taught Forbes Robertson the business of a Shakespearian actor and Wilson Barrett who gave him his first big opening in the part of Romeo. Irving gave Robertson a big part, that of Lancelot, when everybody recognized Robertson as a big actor. That is Irving's way. He gave Robert Taber a big part in "Peter the Great"; but, then, Robert Taber came over to England with a big reputation gained in the United States.

"But you have to study the strange case of Martin Harvey before you are in a position to estimate thoroughly Henry Irving's neglect of his young people. Martin Harvey made, I won't say his first appearance, but certainly one of his earliest appearances on the stage, in the character of the Dauphin in the 1887 revival of "Louis XI." He created a distinct impression by a certain freshness and boyish sincerity which he threw into his lovelorn. Note his progress at the Lyceum. Two programmes lying before me illustrate it in almost ludicrous fashion. One is dated Dec. 29, 1888, the other Sept. 17, 1898. Both are records of performances of "Macbeth," of Irving's second revival of Forbes Robertson's first revival. And in ten years time we find that Martin Harvey has been advanced from Donalbain to Macbeth. In the interval you will find him ranking with other stationary but painstaking gentlemen in the list of most of the Irving productions, absolutely deprived of any opportunity of making his mark. He may reveal his talent to provincial audiences what time the Lyceum Vacation company—is it still existing, I wonder?—goes on tour. But he has to wait for the production of "Pelleas and Melisande" before he gets his chance. And then it is given him by his new manager, Forbes Robertson, not by his old manager, Henry Irving."

Maude Adams is literally packing the Knickerbocker theater in this city with J. M. Barrie's play, "Quality

MAUDE ADAMS AS PHEBE THROSSELL.

Street." While the little comedy is by no means perfect and is in many respects absurdly improbable, Miss Adams in the role of Phebe Throsself is such a great improvement upon Miss Adams as L'Algon that her thousands of admirers are flocking to the Knickerbocker for the purpose of refreshing their memory of that dainty and winsome actress' greatest success by seeing her in a role suggestive of her immortal Lady Babbie.

Dyspepsia Cure

When the stomach is diseased all the other organs suffer, hence fatal diseases of the heart, liver, lungs and kidneys are often the result of improper digestion. KODOL DYSPEPSIA CURE contains all the natural digestive fluids and by digesting what you eat, it cures the indigestion without aid from the stomach, allowing it to rest and regain its healthy condition and permitting you to eat all the good food you want. "My rest is often disturbed at night by irregular heart action which I believe is on account of my stomach being overloaded with undigested food. I keep a bottle of KODOL DYSPEPSIA CURE nearby and a small dose always gives me instant relief. Ed. Thomas, Leitchfield, Ky."

ENGLISH HUGH ...AND... HIS DOG DUKE

"He's sure to be a stick," declared Harold crossly. "I heard Uncle Jack say that he didn't seem a bit like our boys. Why, once when he was there Hugh actually preferred to stay at home and study when he might have gone hunting to the meet. I think they call it, don't they?"

"Perhaps he won't be as bad as you think," suggested Ray hopefully. "He can't be such an awfully bad sort if he's our own cousin, you know. Besides, he has a dog that he's bringing over on the steamer with him. You know we've always wanted a dog."

"Yes, and never could have one because the family objected," Harold grumbled. "I call it a shame that other boys can bring."

"Hurry, if you're coming down to the steamer with me!" called Uncle

IT WAS HUGH TO THE RESCUE.

Jack, and, as they had to catch the train for a half hour's ride to the city in order to meet the Oceanic, Ray and Harold stopped picking their cousin to pieces and hurried after Uncle Jack. Each was, however, very doubtful in his own mind as to the desirability of having Hugh Holcombe in the family for a whole year and perhaps forever. If he was a prig, like the English boys they met in the mountains, or as slow for fun as the Macgregor boys, they certainly did not care to have him come.

But Uncle Jack entertained them with such a fascinating description of Hugh's surroundings in the old English home and at school that they were very curious to see for themselves whether he was, as Ray expressed it, "worth the powder to blow him up."

The steamer moved slowly into dock amid wavings and shouts from the crowd on shore and the crowd on board, and finally the gangplank was safely down, and the crowd streamed out. Among those on deck was a slim boy in long trousers, looking expectantly at the crowd of faces upturned to the deck. He did not see a familiar face, and in the midst of all the joyous parties greeting their friends he looked lonesome and forlorn.

When Hugh caught sight of Uncle Jack, his whole countenance changed, and he waved and hurried with the rest, which so excited the dog that, breaking loose, he rushed down the deck after another dog.

"Look out for yer dog!" called the deck steward, and Hugh dashed after Duke. But the dog was excited, and Hugh reached the stern just in time to see Duke dash wildly overboard.

Uncle Jack and the two boys saw this in a second and rushed to the end of the dock, to see a black figure shoot through the air head first toward the dog in the water.

It was Hugh to the rescue.

Great excitement prevailed on the steamer and wharf, and ropes were lowered and deck hands prepared to let down a boat.

But Hugh was a good swimmer, and, although his position looked perilous, he was self possessed, and, tying the sputtering dog to one rope, he shouted to draw him up, and then, with another rope fastened about his body, Hugh was raised slowly through the air to the wharf.

Uncle Jack was the first to help him over the edge, and in a few minutes the boy was laughing and protesting that he was all right, while Duke frisked around his new found friends and barked delightedly at everything.

"Well, my boy, you had a cold welcome to America," said Uncle Jack, laughing, as they boarded the train. "But these two young beggars here will make it warm enough for you. I'll warrant, before you've been here many days, You must forgive them if they are not overpolite, for they haven't time to remember their manners very often."

"He's got nerve," said Ray to Harold on the way home. "I didn't think a Britisher bad so much."

"He isn't as much of a little Lord Fauntleroy as I thought he would be," said Harold, "though he does dress queerly. I wonder if they all do."

The English boy was quiet and reserved, awed by the great change in his life from the large country estate, with servants at his beck and call, to the little American suburban home of his cousins.

A HARD STRUGGLE

Many a Janesville Citizen finds the struggle hard.

With a back constantly aching, with distressing urinary disorders.

Daily existence is but a struggle. No need to keep it up.

Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you.

Janesville people endorse this claim.

Mr. H. P. Hanson, of 103 Pleasant St., engineer, employed at the Janesville Machine Co., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills did me all the good that could be expected and I recommend them to any one who may be troubled with a lame back or any kidney disorder. After procuring them at the People's drug store and taking them I felt better slept better, my back did not ache like it did, and I did not rise in the morning with a lame and sore back. I suffered from these symptoms for four or five years and I was more than pleased at the results obtained from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills."

That night after supper it was decided that the cellar was the place for a dog to sleep, and, despite the fact that Hugh protested that Duke had always slept in his room, down cellar he went, for in the Bowlder household a dog had never before been permitted.

So Hugh, tired out with the exciting happenings of the day, submitted to authority, and Duke was sent into the cellar, while he went to bed in his little room next the boys', on the third floor.

Ray and Harold woke simultaneously in the middle of the night and sat up in bed. "Did you hear that noise?" whispered Ray.

"Did you?" Harold whispered back.

Their door into the hall was open, and a muffled and stealthy sound of footsteps could be heard down stairs.

"Suppose"—began Harold.

"It's the burglars that have been terrorizing the town," declared Ray.

"What shall we do?"

The noise down stairs ceased, and in a minute a white figure came quietly in at the door.

"I say," said Hugh—for it was he—do your people walk in their sleep? I saw a black figure in the downstairs hall as I looked over the banisters."

Ray and Harold whispered that there had been sneak thieves in the neighborhood.

"If Duke were only here," said Hugh, "he'd catch 'em in a minute. I have not been asleep at all for thinking of him so lonesome there in the damp cellar."

"Fudge!" said Harold. "Don't be a baby. Are you afraid to sleep alone?"

Hugh's eyes flashed in the dark.

"Are we going to rouse the family?" he asked.

"And scare the burglars away?" added Ray.

"We couldn't wake Uncle Jack if we blew a horn in his ear. I believe, but—"

The noise down stairs was heard again, and the three boys tiptoed to the banisters. There was a light in the dining room and, they thought, a faint rattle of silver.

"Are there any back stairs?" asked Hugh.

"Yes," said Ray.

"Let us steal down and let Duke out. He'll catch 'em."

"But—but the stairs go into the kitchen, and that's right next to the dining room," said Harold. "We might—we might scare 'em!"

"Yes, we might scare 'em away," added Ray.

Hugh had started for the back stairs and was part way down.

"I'm going alone, then," he answered.

"If you won't come."

And alone he went, down through the kitchen, past the dining room door, under which he saw a light, and, opening the cellar door, he called softly to Duke, and Duke, who had dreamed restlessly of his young master, heard and put a cold nose into his hand.

"Burglars!" whispered Hugh in his ear, and the clever dog understood, and his hair bristled in expectation. Quietly they went to the dining room door, and Hugh opened it. There at the table stood a rough looking man, a piece of pie in one hand and a lot of spoons in the other. He did not notice the swing door as it moved and let a small dog in, nor did he notice that the small dog sat down and watched him intently while his master strolled up to Uncle Jack's room and with a few well directed blows awakened him. Then Uncle Jack and a revolver confronted the man at one door, while Duke and Hugh guarded the other.

"You might as well be quiet about it and not frighten the ladies," said Uncle Jack to the man. "Empty your pockets. That's right. Now walk into the kitchen. Hugh, show the way to the cellar. Now go down cellar and stay there till morning. If you try to get out, this dog will make short work with you. Good night!" And Uncle Jack locked the cellar door.

"Will Duke keep guard?" asked Uncle Jack.

"Yes," said Hugh. "And as long as he's in a comfortable place I shall feel better. Duke, guard that door and don't let him out."

Duke wagged his tail understandingly and settled to his task, while Hugh went back to bed.

"Where's your burglar?" jeered the boys when he came back.

At breakfast the next morning Harold and Ray looked sheepish. The man was still in the cellar, and Uncle Jack was going to deliver him to the police.

Finally Ray cleared his throat in an embarrassed manner.

"Hugh," he said, "you're a brat, and we want to tell you that we're sorry we said such things about you."

"Yes," added Harold. "we want to tell you that we think English boys, like you, go way ahead of American boys, like us, for bravery."

That night after supper it was decided that the cellar was the place for a dog to sleep, and, despite the fact that Hugh protested that Duke had always slept in his room, down cellar he went, for in the Bowlder household a dog had never before been permitted.

So Hugh, tired out with the exciting happenings of the day, submitted to authority, and Duke was sent into the cellar, while he went to bed in his little room next the boys', on the third floor.

At breakfast the next morning Harold and Ray looked sheepish. The man was still in the cellar, and Uncle Jack was going to deliver him to the police.

Finally Ray cleared his throat in an embarrassed manner.

"Hugh," he said, "you're a brat, and we want to tell you that we're sorry we said such things about you."

"Yes," added Harold. "we want to tell you that we think English boys, like you, go way ahead of American boys, like us, for bravery."

It was Hugh to the rescue.

Great excitement prevailed on the steamer and wharf, and ropes were lowered and deck hands prepared to let down a boat.

But Hugh was a good swimmer, and, although his position looked perilous, he was self possessed, and, tying the sputtering dog to one rope, he shouted to draw him up, and then, with another rope fastened about his body, Hugh was raised slowly through the air to the wharf.

Uncle Jack was the first to help him over the edge, and in a few minutes the boy was laughing and protesting that he was all right, while Duke frisked around his new found friends and barked delightedly at everything.

"Well, my boy, you had a cold welcome to America," said Uncle Jack, laughing, as they boarded the train.

"But these two young beggars here will make it warm enough for you. I'll warrant, before you've been here many days, You must forgive them if they are not overpolite, for they haven't time to remember their manners very often."

"He's got nerve," said Ray to Harold on the way home. "I didn't think a Britisher bad so much."

"He isn't as much of a little Lord Fauntleroy as I thought he would be," said Harold, "though he does dress queerly. I wonder if they all do."

The English boy was quiet and reserved, awed by the great change in his life from the large country estate, with servants at his beck and call, to the little American suburban home of his cousins.

It was Hugh to the rescue. "I didn't think a Britisher bad so much."

When the life story of Jimmy Michael appears in print, it will doubtless bear the title "Stumbles into Turfdom." The youngster's second venture in the saddle straddling game has roused much adverse criticism, and, although Jimmy is doing well over in France, few of his friends can reconcile themselves to his decision.

The tiny Welsh wonder is under the tutelage of the likewise diminutive Tod

Sloane, who makes up in self esteem whatever he lacks in stature. Michael is in charge of a good instructor in the art of horse piloting, and his second attempt to extract shekels from the equine world should "pan out" better than did his venture of two or three years ago.

Sloane made his first duty that of correcting Jimmy's seat. The cyclist had accustomed himself to sitting back and fairly straight in the saddle, after the manner of English jockeys. Tod's peculiar style is known to horsemen everywhere and by reason of its success has partially revolutionized riding. He is drilling his mode into Jimmy, who now crouches on his mount's neck, riding with stirrup straps as short as possible.

Jimmy will lose none of his popularity so long as he confines his imitation of Tod to horsemanship, but let us hope he will not duplicate the latter's high heeled French boots, flaming scarlet scarfs and waffle iron waistcoats.

Automobilists have nearly all entered the racing end of the sport. The man who uses an auto entirely for milder forms of pleasure is a comparatively rare specimen of the genus chauffeur. And the racers themselves are also divided. Road and track racing each have a corps of admirers. While votaries of the former branch often speed their machines on inclosed courses, and vice versa, the two divisions have many points of difference.

Road racing is undeniably the most enjoyable sort of auto speedling. The rapidly changing landscapes, the clear, crisp atmosphere and attending excitement tend to disperse troubles and all thought of self.

The accompanying picture shows a racing automobile in full flight over a hilly road. In the machine are George Stackhouse, a well known New York newspaper man, together with an official of the Automobile Club of America. Both are enthusiastic motor car devotees.

Terry McGovern was at the race track recently, and a man came to him with a story of a good thing. He argued with Terry forty minutes, and Terry finally sent a friend down to look at the nag. Hearing that the beast looked fit and fine, Terry pulled out a roll eight inches thick, skinned off a dollar and asked his friend to put it on the animal to show provided the odds to win were not less than 15 to 1.

"Grandpa" Anson has arranged a new scheme to worry J. A. Hart, who caused the "old man" to depart from the Chicago team. His game is to plant a team on the west side, to be a member of the Western league. What hails the deal, however, is the fact that Anson thinks his name so grand a card that he ought to have 50 per cent of the plunder without risking a cent of his own. This makes the other promoters feel dubious.

"Uncle" Anson's glee over the idea is undiluted. To settle on the west side with a club which, if it plays good ball, will take away some of Jim Hart's trade seems to him intensely enjoyable. He is already figuring on a nine team and thinks the old stand, where two days were won, will be the only location.

"The Belle of New York."

"The Belle of New York" is about to be revived in London by the company that appeared there in the failure of "The Whirl of the Town." Madge Leasing will take Edna May's place as the Salvation Army lassie, Eddie Fay will be the Bowery girl, and James E. Sullivan and Frank Lawton will have the roles which they introduced in that city.

MEN WHO TRAIN EQUINE CHAMPIONS.

Must Have nerve and Experience. Huggins, Darling, Joyner and Brown.

When a popular turf champion romps under the wire a winner on any one of the numerous tracks throughout the country, the game animal receives the plaudits of the multitude, the jockey adds to his reputation and the owner is immediately surrounded by friends and showered with congratulations. Back in the paddock is a man having no active part in the gay scene, yet he it is who made victory possible for the thoroughbred. He is the trainer, the man who literally eats and sleeps on the track, keeping a watchful eye on his charge, working up his speed, strengthening his wind, hardening his muscles and correcting his gait. The trainer seldom comes prominently before the public. In fact he is often overlooked by the flocks thousands in the grand stand, who do not know of or fail to consider his days and weeks of nervous tension and eternal vigilance.

Trainers in the modern stables must be men who have been through every variation and know every trick and dodge in the racing game. The extent of a man's experience and his ability to develop speed determine the market value of a trainer, and all emergencies must be met and mastered by him. Horse owners repose absolute confidence in their trainers, and all affairs of the stable come under their control.

Two American trainers made available records for themselves in Europe during the season. Sam Darling and John Huggins have given transatlantic horsemen many valuable points on care and development of equine champions. Darling trains for the stable of Foxhall P. Keene, the society sportsman and son of James R. Keene, the well known Wall street operator.

Keene's stable has won many notable victories at both French and English courses. Darling's greatest triumph was in the preparation of Cap and Bells II, winner of the famous The Oaks stake. Huggins trained William C. Whitney's leased thoroughbred Volodyovskiy, winner of the last English Derby, England's premier racing event.

These men, by reason of their knack in bringing out a horse's best going qualities, are feared as much abroad as are American jockeys.

Among other prominent trainers are Peter Wimmer, in charge of J. B. Haggan's horses; John Hyland, developer of the horses of August Belmont, president of the Coney Island (N. Y.) Jockey club; Tom. Welsh of the Fleischmann stable; G. W. Poole, Howard Williams, J. McLaughlin, P. H. Hume and A. J. Joyner, the popular horseman who trained Perry Belmont's Ethelbert.

SAM DARLING, TRAINER FOR FOXHALL KEENE

Walden and Rowe, trainers for James R. Keene, have "brought out" many notable racers, having in charge Voter, who last year at Brighton Beach picked up 122 pounds and ran a mile in 1:38; Contestor, Commando, this year's greatest three-year-old; Conroy, winner of the Brooklyn Handicap, and various other crack-jackets. Healey, trainer for R. I. Wilson, the eastern horseman, has achieved prominence through bringing The Parader, the game three-year-old, to top notch form.

State Senator Patrick H. Carron of New York and Richard Croker, the leader of Tammany Hall, who operate the Croker-McCarron stable, have in Frank Brown an able trainer. Brown is a young man and has won his way to the front rank by exercising good judgment and by personal application to his work. He is a westerner, but formed the idea that the east would give greater scope in which to satisfy his ambition. The horses under his care include Beau Gallant, Bellario, King Bramble, Potente and about fifteen other consistent performers. The string of two-year-olds in the Croker-McCarron stable also contains many promising steeds.

ATTRACTI0NS AT THE THEATRE.

There are some things which are to be loved, and better to serve than past all finding out and one is the to be served." Throughout the new play is said to be filled with deft touches such as only a woman can supply, showing the evidence of the true student of her sex who knows and appreciates the well springs of their action, the light and shadow that follow each other like sunshine and cloud afield on a day in June, the character of the lovable and altogether delightful American women silhouetted, as it were, against the background of noble manliness. Those prominent in the caste are: Mr. Morton Seaton, Mr. Percy Brooke, Mr. Chas. W. Stokes, Mr. Douglas Fairbanks, Mr. William Elliott, Miss Hattie Russell, Miss Winona Shannon, Mrs. Esable Waldron, and Miss Ida Darling.

Perhaps the unusual social activity in the city has been responsible in a large measure for the poor houses at some of the performances and it has been suggested that those who appreciate Manager Myers' efforts to secure the best procurable attractions would show him a merited courtesy if they would plan their large social gatherings so as not to conflict with his strongest and most expensive productions.

"Her Lord and Master," the new play of which we have heard so many favorable reports, is to be produced at the Myers Grand on Friday evening, Dec. 13th. It will be presented by Mr. Herbert Kelcey and Miss Elle Shannon, for whom it was especially written. Its author is Miss Martha Morton, and those who have seen "A Bachelor's Romance," "A Fool of Fortune," and "His Wife's Father," know something of the strength of Miss Morton's delineation of character; but in the new play it is said while she has drawn her characters faithfully, she has done more. She has added to this a great dramatic force which touch the hidden springs of action that stir the souls of men and women in every walk of life. Situations that appeal at all times to the better feelings in human nature telling the story in a didactic way and gradually working to a denouement that is veiled until the last curtain falls.

"The Man From Mexico"

"Her Lord and Master" is the story of the development of a wilful and spoiled child, into a noble woman.

"Indiana Stillwater" is endowed by nature with the faculty of winning the love of every one around her, and the inevitable result is that she is a spoiled, impetuous creature, whose mood changes with every passing moment.

She marries a man considerably her senior; not because of any deep seated love, but purely out of admiration of a noble character who sees the serious side of life and inspires in her a desire to do better, to be more than the mere petted and spoiled child. The man she marries is an Englishman; staid, conservative and noble. A scholar and a gentleman, who although deeply in love with his young American wife, feels none the less the necessity of molding her character into channels that should be consonant with her social position and that of his family.

Coming from America where her girlhood had been spent and where she had queened in the little circle in which she moved, she enters the English home where the service is precise, where old traditions rule and where the very atmosphere is conveniency itself.

Being flexible and adaptable she throws off the old mode. She sacrifices the old liberty of freedom and speech and under the tutelage of a conventional English mother she tries to adapt herself to the old customs and to fit herself for the new life. But old traditions and new ideas will not mix; the contrast between the old and the new is too great, the change is too severe, and when in the midst of her longing for home, for a sight of the dear old friends and familiar scenes, her own people arrive, and Indiana so far forgets her position as Lady Canning as to visit with her people a place of amusement on Sunday night; and here is the great climax of the play, when returning after midnight she finds the doors of her husband's home barred against her and being let in by an old servant, this child wife meets her husband in a dramatic scene, matching her American spirit against the stronger will of the English lord.

A scene where love and pride in the man and humiliation and pride in the woman fight for supremacy, and where the strong love and noble character of the man wins, transforming an impulsive, self-willed girl to a noble woman who finally realizes that it is "Better to love than

Miss Amelia Blingham and her company have made so sterling a success in "The Climbers" both in New York where it ran last for 200 nights at the Bijou Theater, and in the leading cities of America visited this season, that the attention of prominent publishers has been called to the play. In consequence Mr. Clyde Fitch has "novelized" his drama and it will be placed on the market during the approaching holiday season.

It is safe to say that comment will be aroused and many approving glances cast among the fair sex when Miss Elle Shannon steps upon the stage of the Myers Grand opera house on Friday evening in her new hunting costume, which is an original design of her own and which was made by the Messrs. Haas Bros. of New York. Miss Shannon has long been known for her extreme originality and artistic taste in dress and the new creations all of which have been made especially for the new production, are said to be masterpieces of L'Art de la Mode.

FEW PEOPLE REALIZE

The Danger in That Common Disease, Cataract.

Because cataract diseases are so common and because cataract is not rapidly fatal, people too often overlook and neglect it until some incurable ailment develops as a result of the neglect.

The inflamed condition of the membrane of the nose and throat makes a fertile soil for the germs of pneumonia and consumption, in fact, cataract pneumonia and cataract consumption are the most common forms of these dreaded diseases which annually cause more than one quarter of the deaths in this country.

Remedies for cataract are almost as numerous as cataract sufferers but very few have any actual merit as a cure, the only good being derived simply a temporary relief.

There is, however, a very effective remedy recently discovered which is rapidly becoming famous for its great value in relieving and permanently curing all forms of cataract diseases, whether located in the head, throat, lungs or stomach.

This new cataract cure is principally composed of gum derived from the Eucalyptus tree, and this gum possesses extraordinary healing and anti-septic properties. It is taken internally in the form of a lozenge or tablet, pleasant to taste and so harmless that little children take them with safety and benefit.

Eucalyptus oil and the bark are sometimes used but are not so convenient nor so palatable as the gum.

Undoubtedly the best quality is found in Stuart's Cataract Tablets which may be found in any drug store and any cataract sufferer who has tried douches, inhalers and liquid medicines, will be surprised at the rapid improvements after a few days' use of Stuart's Cataract Tablets which are composed of the gum of Eucalyptus tree, combined with other antiseptics which destroy the germs of cataract in the blood and expel the cataract poison from the system.

Dr. Ramsdell, in speaking of cataract and its cures says: "After many experiments I have given up the idea of curing cataract by the use of inhalers, washes, salves, or liquid medicines. I have always had the best results from Stuart's Cataract Tablets; the red gum and other valuable antiseptics contained in these tablets make them, in my opinion, far superior to any of the numerous cataract remedies so extensively advertised. The fact that Stuart's Cataract Tablets are sold in drug stores, under protection of a trade mark, should not prejudice conscientious physicians against them because their undoubted merit and harmless character make them a remedy which every cataract sufferer may use with perfect safety and the prospects of permanent cure.

For colds in the head, for coughs, cataract deafness and cataract of the stomach and liver, people who have tried them say that Stuart's Cataract Tablets are a household necessity.

SCHOOL POLICY THEIR TOPIC

Rock County Teachers Discussed Various Interesting Themes.

BANQUET AT NOON

President Salisbury of Whitewater and Others Make Important Suggestions.

WAS BIG ATTENDANCE

The largest and most successful meeting of the Rock County Teachers' association was held in this city today, between four and five hundred teachers being in attendance at the session at the High school. Many prominent educators from other countries and from the state educational organizations were present and the program of the day was the finest ever given at a county meeting. President R. E. Loveland, or Clinton, was the presiding officer.

The Morning Session

The morning program opened very pleasingly with singing by the children of the first grade of the Washington school. Under the direction of Prof. W. F. Gaskins, the instructor in music, and Miss Alice Shearer, the teacher of the youthful vocalists, the little tots sang a triple number of motion songs, including "The Bee Song" and Mrs. Gaynor's "Shoemaker Song," and "Tulip Song." The little people were very cunning and sang well, meriting the hearty applause which followed their songs.

W. H. Cheever of Milwaukee, president of the Wisconsin Teachers' association was present and was invited to say a few words to the teachers. Mr. Cheever is an unusually pleasant and interesting speaker and he spoke in a very entertaining manner of the coming meeting of the State Association at Milwaukee.

Interesting also was the forceful opening address by R. E. Loveland, president of the county association. He said in brief that Rock county not only has one of the largest teachers' associations in the state but a successful association which is wielding a large influence for good throughout the country.

A boy's chorus from the second grade of the Adams school under the direction of Miss Margaret Joyce, the teacher, and Prof. W. F. Gaskins, sang "The Jack-o'-Lantern" song and the pretty number was loudly encored.

Salisbury's Address

President Albert Salisbury of the Whitewater normal school gave an able and valuable address on the question "What can be done to develop a knowledge of and taste for literature among the pupils in common schools?" Literature is especially valuable as a means of cultivating minds, of introduction to the thought of other people and of the time and of widening life's outlook. It calls forth and cultivates the finer senses and helps one to live on a higher plane. One of the best methods of introducing literature is through the school readers and a careful selection of text books.

The old custom of "speaking pleases" has a lasting and valuable effect, but this custom is degenerating largely from the classics to the trashy, the frivolous and the melodramatic selections.

The discussion which followed was opened by Prof. Burr of Beloit, who thought distinction must be made between the schools which have opportunities and those that have not. He saw a possible danger in detracting to inspire children in the best place in reading by giving it so large a part of school work. Prof. Burr was followed by Pres. Salisbury and County Supt. David Thorne, both claiming that the state has seen to it that all the schools have opportunities to secure books, all having school libraries. Pres. Salisbury did not agree with statement made by Prof. Burr that the home is the best place to inspire children with a taste for good books. He believes children will visit the school library and the public library in preference to the home library.

Talk on Agriculture

A practical and interesting talk on the introduction of agriculture into the common schools was given by Prof. W. A. Henry, of Madison, dean of agriculture at the University of Wisconsin. The work must be done by the teachers and Prof. Henry urged above all things simplicity in the method. The work must begin with telling the pupils about the common things which surround them, in plant life; insects and animals. In rural schools simple and practical things about farm life may be taught in a simple and interesting manner with the purpose of making the boys successful farmers. Farmers should be taught to make money and to enjoy it, this power being necessary to get the best out of life.

Prof. A. A. Upham, of the Whitewater Normal school opened the discussion by endorsing many of the suggestions made by Prof. Henry and by adding some other suggestions of things that may be profitably taught. In the absence of state Inspector, Jack County Supt. J. H. Nattrass, of La Fayette county, spoke briefly on the value of the railed school movement for rural districts. He was followed by County Superintendent William Rose and both speakers endorsed the movement as securing the best results from the smallest expenditure of money by giving the pupils in the rural districts the advantage of better teachers, better equipment and an established course of study.

Were Given a Feast
This closed the morning program and the teachers adjourned to the gymnasium where they were the guests of the teachers of the Janesville city schools at a dainty three course luncheon.

When the tables had been cleared Supt. H. C. Buell took charge of an impromptu postprandial program, calling on several of those present to respond to toasts for which he assigned the subjects. The responses were all bright and this part of the day's program was heartily enjoyed. The following is the program of toasts:

A Scotch Welcome—W. S. Jeffris, president Janesville board of education.
Where Are We At—President Albert Salisburp, Whitewater Normal School.
Up a Tree—Supt A. J. Hutton, State School for the Blind.

The Joys and Sorrows of an Association President—President R. E. Loveland, Clinton Normal School—Prof. A. A. Upham, Whitewater Normal School, "the man from Massachusetts."

Afternoon Meeting

The first part of the afternoon was devoted to section meetings. Supt. F. E. Converse, of Beloit, being chairman of the High school section, Miss Gertrude Musgrave, of Edgerton, of the grammar grade section; and Miss Abby A. Atwood of the city of the primary section. In each meeting the special work of that section was discussed and special features were the illustration of the value of physical training, given in the grammar grade meeting by Mrs. J. B. Day and a class of pupils, and the illustration of language in the primary section by the pupils in three of the grades of the Janesville schools.

At 3:30 o'clock another general session of the association was held and an able address full of practical suggestions by Miss Maude Summers, of Chicago, on "The Thought Element in Reading" preceded the business session with which the annual meeting of the Rock County Teachers' association closed. Those most vitally interested were delighted with the strength and success of the meeting and with the hospitable manner in which the association was entertained by the teachers of this city.

FOUND DEAD IN HIS BED THIS MORNING

News Received Here of the Death of Rev. T. Lawson at Home of His Daughter.

G. L. Noyes received a telegram from Platteville this morning announcing the death of his father-in-law, the Reverend T. Lawson, of this city. The telegram stated that Mr. Lawson was found dead in his bed this morning by his daughter, Mrs. J. Bentley, at whose home he was visiting.

Mr. Lawson was seventy-four years of age and had been a resident of this city for the last seventeen years. He has been on a visit to his daughter of late, and a letter received from her a day or two ago stated that he was not feeling well. He was a minister of this city and was a minister of the Methodist faith. He was also a superannuate of the West Wisconsin conference.

He leaves surviving him four daughters, Mrs. Grant L. Noyes, of this city, Mrs. J. Bentley of Plainfield, Wis.; Miss Winnie Lawson, of Westfield, Wis.; Mrs. Archie Crawford, of Janesville, and a boy Fred, of Whitehorne; Frank of Oshkosh, Charley of Montana and Simpson Lawson of this city.

The interment will probably be made at Warren, Ill., where his wife now rests.

The Married Folks dancing club gave their opening party last evening at the East Side Odd Fellows' hall. There was a good attendance of members, and all enjoyed themselves to the fullest extent. Smith's orchestra furnished the music. The next party will be held on January 2.

Those who find it necessary to wear glasses will find it to their advantage to consult an eye specialist who knows every branch of the business from the fitting of lenses to the manufacture of lenses. W. F. Hayes, the eye specialist with F. C. Cook & Co., is in his Janesville office every Saturday and Monday.

Rev. A. H. Barrington received a telephone message this morning from Bort asking him to officiate at a funeral in that city today. The Bort church is without a rector. He did not know when he left the name of the deceased.

We've placed on sale about 150 boys' suits, made of all-wool materials, in the different fabrics; mostly $2.50 and $3.00 suite; 2-piece suits, ages 8 to 16; 3-piece suits, ages 3 to 10. They are excellent values for the price. You should see them to appreciate them. Amos Rehberg & Co.

There are no travel worn, finger marked samples in the goods shown by Hall, Sayles & Fifield, "the reliable jewelers," in their Milwaukee street show window.

Most people buying Christmas gifts like to have fresh goods, especially if the prices are low enough, and a glance at their window will convince one as to that.

The local Good Templars' lodge had a program last evening which involved a party between the boys and girls. The girls won as usual. Then the boys treated the girls to a supper. There were flowers and music and song and the whole affair was declared a splendid success.

Queer things happen sometimes. Evidently some of the eastern wholesale jewelers do not carry a much larger line than is shown by Hall, Sayles & Fifield, "the reliable jewelers," of this city. And the peculiar thing about it is that on most things the prices of Hall, Sayles & Fifield are lower than those of eastern jewelers. That is because "the reliable jewelers" buy direct from the makers and are satisfied with a small profit.

See their window display.

Allyn Goes to Jail

Charles Allyn, the plumber, who was arrested for shooting at Fred Lutz in his saloon yesterday was brought before Judge Fifield this afternoon. Lutz swore out a warrant against Allyn charging him with carrying concealed weapons against the dignity and peace of the state of Wisconsin. On his plea of guilty Judge Fifield sentenced him to pay a fine of $50 and costs or to spend four months in the county jail, and not having the money with which to pay his fine he went to jail.

FORM BENEFIT ASSOCIATION

Janesville Fireman to Provide Fund for Sick and Disabled Members

—Receipts of Property for This Purpose

The members of the fire department are making extensive arrangements for their forty-seventh annual dancing party which will be held at Assembly hall on Christmas eve—Tuesday evening, December 24th. Smith's full orchestra will furnish the music, and the several committees having the details in charge will leave nothing undone to prevent all enjoying a pleasant holiday party. A general invitation is cordially extended to the public to attend this party. The members of the fire department are forming an association among themselves having for its main object mutual aid and assistance to sick and disabled members, and have resolved that all monies taken in at their annual parties be placed in this fund.

For the purpose of realizing something more than expenses the members have obtained permission to sell tickets and hope to meet with a cordial reception. Captain Thos. F. Abbott will have charge of this work which is assurance to the public that while he hopes to sell tickets no one will be held under any obligations to purchase on account of the fire department, and no one will be censured in the least for a negative answer.

The price of tickets has been placed at seventy-five cents, and no one is authorized to make public sale of same except Captain Abbott or the member accompanying him.

This being the first time the members of the department have publicly sold or peddled tickets for their annual party, they should meet with a cordial and successful visit with all.

Hordes of Aliens Are Coming In American Federation of Labor Warned of Multitudes of Contract Laborers.

A FLOOD OF RESOLUTIONS.

President Roosevelt Commended for His Attitude on the Chinese Exclusion Question—Statistical Reports of President Gompers and Treasurer Lennon.

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 7.—Delegates to the American Federation of Labor convention were warned that thousands of aliens are being brought into the United States in defiance of the laws. Edward F. McSweeney, deputy commissioner of immigration at the port of New York, made the principal address of the day, reviewing the history of emigration from the downfall of the Roman empire to the present time. "The spirit of the law is being violated by the wholesale," he said, and called attention to the recent railroad wreck in Michigan, when a large number of Italians, undoubtedly brought into this country under contract, were killed. Speaking of the Chinese exclusion act, Mr. McSweeney said the Japanese should also be excluded from the United States because they are more undesirable than are the Chinamen. In conclusion he said that the immigration laws should be revised and reconstructed from the beginning by experts.

During the course of the two sessions eighty-eight resolutions were presented and referred to committees. They cover nearly every variety of subjects that affect workmen. One of them contained a denunciation of Wu Ting Fang, the Chinese minister, for an alleged derogatory remark against the American people, and another conveyed the "sincere and hearty thanks" of the Federation of Labor to President Roosevelt for the position he took in his message to congress on the question of Chinese exclusion.

The reading of the annual report of President Gompers consumed three hours at the convention. Secretary Morrison's report and that of Treasurer John B. Lennon were also read. Mr. Gompers' report showed a net increase of 311 local unions for the year and a gain of 364,410 members. From national and international unions and the federation direct there were issued 4,056 charters for newly formed unions and charters surrendered or unions disbanded numbered 1,159. On Oct. 31 last there were affiliated with the federation: National and international unions, 87; city central labor unions, 327; state federations of labor, 20; local trade unions, having no national or international, 750; and federal labor unions, 339. There were four strikes of a general character during the year. That of the river and dock workers of San Francisco was a distinct victory.

Mr. Gompers says he has arranged an active campaign for the re-enactment of the Chinese exclusion act and expresses surprise at the "patience of the Pacific coast citizens in submitting to a state of affairs so horrible and degrading."

Treasurer Lennon's report showed an income of $126,522, expenses $118,708, total funds at hand, $8,814.

Prepare a New Bible.

New York, Dec. 7.—A new bible, authorized by the recent general convention in San Francisco to be read in all Episcopal churches in the United States, has been in process of compilation by the committee on marginal readings, which has sat at the Episcopal General seminary in this city since last Tuesday and will finish its work to-morrow, says the Times. It was stated that an English firm has promised to undertake the publication of this bible without expense to the committee. This new bible is to consist of the text and renderings of the King James version, the renderings of the English revision, and the renderings of the recent American revision.

Frankfort Station Wrecked.

Frankfort-on-the-Main, Dec. 7.—A large part of the handsome railway station here was wrecked by the orient express, the air-brakes of which failed to work. The train dashed into the station at full speed, jumped the platform and came to a standstill in the middle of the waiting room against the debris of a stone wall. A few of the passengers were badly bruised, but no one was fatally injured. The people about the station and in the waiting room had remarkable escapes.

CHAFFEE WANTS TROOPS TO REMAIN

Complete Peace Will Not Be Attained in the Philippines for Years.

IMPROVEMENT IS GRADUAL.

Natives Are Accused of Inhuman Method in Treatment of Prisoners—Reign of Terror in Southern Luzon—More Bubonic Plague Expected.

Washington, Dec. 7.—In his official report of the conditions of the past year in the Philippines, Major General Chaffee, military governor, expresses his gratification at the advancement made. His annual report has just been received at the war department.

"If nothing more has been done by the military in the past three years," he says, "it has laid an excellent foundation and a turbulent and hostile community has been brought to observe laws and to be individually orderly. The world will watch with keen interest the evolution of an American city from the Malay and Mongolian elements which now almost exclusively compose the population."

While General Chaffee reports that peace reigns in northern Luzon, the insurrections in the south and the reign of terror the brigands have inaugurated among the natives in many communities will for years to come, he believes, be a most difficult problem to successfully solve. He recommends that no further material reduction of troops be made before January 1, 1903.

In this connection he says: "The return of troops would be greatly in the interests of the army and economy, but neither is of such vital importance, temporarily at least, as military contemplation of events and martial support of the civil governments during the period of time necessary for complete organization and for a further period during their trial; also for familiarization of the people with the new order of things." The inhuman methods of the natives are touched upon in reports from the field. The insurgents bind strong men with their hands behind them, then, before the victims are buried alive in graves dug before their eyes, or drowned in deep water, they are taunted and beaten with clubs. The native prisoners deported to Guam have no cause for complaint, judging from the report. They are so well fed and cared for that they gleefully declare that they have never been so well provided for.

An epidemic of bubonic plague throughout Luzon is expected the ensuing year. Last year there were 452 cases and 372 deaths in Manila. It is estimated that in the coming year there will be at least 1,000 cases. Tuberculosis is prevalent in Manila. Last year there were over 5,000 cases. Reports from six regiments in the field show that the abolition of the sale of beer and wine in the army canteen has increased greatly the number of court-martials.

Undergoes a greater strain than is generally realized, and every woman is a society woman in her own circle. OUR TEA GARDENS.
HOW THIS HERB IS GROWN IN THE UNITED STATES.

Believed We Will Soon Raise Enough Tea to Supply This Country—The Success in This Industry in Summerville, S. C.

Ask almost any youngster today where most of our tea comes from, and you will promptly be told "China," but in the near future you may get a very different reply. Right here in America this so-called herb is now being raised and so successfully that in a few years we may be producing all of it we need and still have some left over for export. If such proves to be the case, it will be owing to the energy and enterprise of the southern states, particularly South Carolina, for it is there the work of raising tea has been carried on for a number of years.

The greatest success in this line has been achieved by Dr. C. U. Shepard on his Pinehurst tea gardens at Summerville, S. C. There for over ten years he has worked and experimented, groping in the dark very often for the secrets of the tea growers of the orient. The difference in rainfall, the difference of labor and other problems less serious, but whose solution was requisite for final commercial success, have been met and overcome.

Congress made an appropriation for an experiment in tea culture about twenty years ago, but the money was injudiciously expended, and on the report that there was little prospect of anything of value being accomplished the experiment was closed. Recently, recognizing the value of Dr. Shepard's work, the department of agriculture has given him hearty support, bearing much of the expense and making him the department's special agent. Experiments were begun on a small scale and were necessarily expensive.

Success has been achieved; the gardens are now paying a handsome profit and have not yet reached their full growth. "Knowledge has been gained," says Dr. Shepard, "and a path opened, but only to reveal more room for continued application and study." Experiments have not been confined to those varieties that promised most remunerative returns, but other seeds that seemed to require different conditions have been given trials, the effort being always to increase the productiveness, as there lies the profit."

In February, 1890, these tea gardens endured conditions seldom experienced in the south, when the mercury fell there to 2 degrees below zero. The gardens had no protection from the weather, and it was feared they were ruined, but they have now entirely recovered. After the freeze the bushes were pruned liberally. Of course this temporarily affected the productiveness.

In 1894 the garden at Pinehurst yielded 80 pounds, two years later 215 pounds and last year over 500 pounds. There are

HUNTING THE PRAIRIE DOG.

Indians Eatem Them a Choice Table Delicacy and Run Them Down.

Many of the western Indian tribes regard the prairie dog as one of the choicest of game animals. The Navajo in particular, while he cannot be prevailed upon to eat rabbit is greedily fond of fat prairie dogs. Large communities of these small animals abound on the western plains and the Navajo has resorted to many ingenious methods for trapping his coveted dainty. One of them is by the aid of a bit of mirror placed at the entrance to a burrow. When the animal ventures from his bedroom, deep underground, he sees a familiar image mocking him at the front door and he hurries out to confront the impudent intruder when he is pinned to the ground with an arrow. But the most effective method is what the Indians call the rain hunt. As soon as the steady downpour of summer rains begins every Navajo who can walk retraces to the prairie dog village with lances, sharp sticks or any digging implement. With these they hollow out trenches that will lead the storm into as many trenches as possible. Soon a little stream is pouring down each small home and the inmate, much disturbed, pops out to see what the matter can be. Many of the animals remain underground until they are drowned and their bodies float to the surface. After such hunts, in which many pounds of prairie dogs are generally secured, there is a feast for many days in the Navajo huts.

The beauty thief has come to stay. Unless you drive the pimples and blackheads away; Do this: don't look like a fright: Take Rocky Mountain Tea Tonight.

Col. Meade Is Acquitted. Washington D. C. 7.—It is announced at the navy department that the court-martial in the case of Col. Robert L. Meade of the marine corps, who was tried on the charge of drunkenness, has resulted in his acquittal and he has been restored to duty at the Brooklyn navy yard.

Wholesale Lynching Is Feared. Andalusia, Ala., Dec. 7.—Sheriff Bradshaw has returned to Andalusia with twenty-one negroes who are accused of complicity in the killing of J. W. Dorsey, a merchant, and the fatal wounding of Fale Atkinson, city marshal at Opp. There are fears of wholesale lynching.

few gardens in China that yield over 200 pounds of dry tea to the acre. This garden is on a spot naturally fertile and was heavily enriched with fertilizers. Among other experiments the cultivation of tea in gardens protected by matting from the direct sunlight has been tried and has proved successful as to quality. Dr. Shepard says: "Whether it will be possible to produce a tea commanding more than tenfold the price of that grown in the open, as in Japan, remains to be solved, as also how great must be the expense of the additional labor and the outlay. Years may elapse before there will be a reliable demand in the United States for tea costing five or ten dollars a pound and upward, as in the orient, where such prices are not infrequent."

The picking season lasts about six months, and each bush will bear plucking once every ten days. Only certain parts of the shoots are gathered. The end leaf, very tender and only partly expanded, is called the pekoe tip, or flowery pekoe. Almost as tender is the next leaf on the stem, the so-called orange pekoe. The two leaves following are called pekoe and souchong. In the early spring only the pekoe tip and three-quarters of the orange pekoe leaf are plucked. As the season advances three-quarters of the pekoe leaf is taken, and at the height of the season half of the souchong leaf is picked.

Trustworthy proof is abundant that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saves thousands of young women from dangers resulting from organic irregularity, suppression or retention of the menses, ovarian or womb troubles. Refuse substitutes.

To obtain a reliable supply of labor colored children in the neighborhood are invited to attend a modern school where good teachers and every convenience is furnished free. Along with their lessons the children are instructed in the art of picking the tea leaf. The leaf is picked as carefully as possible, all tearing and crushing being avoided, and thrown lightly into Swiss trout baskets. This is not allowed to remain in the fields for any length of time, since fermentation is liable to occur. When brought to the factory, it is inspected, weighed and afterward sent to the withering loft.

There is need for a vast amount of floor room, every pound of tea representing over forty feet of withering space. The tea is dried by means of hot air.

Dr. Shepard knows of nothing in agriculture so profitable as tea raising after it is understood. The gardens once planted, their productiveness increases yearly up to the maximum. Aside from tea planting for commerce, he believes that throughout a vast portion of the country it can be raised for home consumption in corners of the flower garden. The commercial crop at Pinehurst this year is about 10,000 pounds.

Does your child seem fretful, peevish, without any desire to play and does it have a burning hot skin at night? This is due to undigested food accumulating in the stomach poisoning the whole system. Give it a dose of Dr. Arnold's Nuvo Family Tea and a good warm foot bath at bed time and see how much better the child feels in the morning. Dr. Arnold's Nuvo Family Tea removes all the poisonous matter from the system, tones up and sweetens the stomach and puts new life into the body. Dr. Arnold's Nuvo Family Tea is just as good for children as it is for grown folks.

Suggestion for the Charitable. A philanthropic woman who is much interested in the children's ward of a hospital is placing a coverlid for the bed of one patient little incurable that will delight his cruelly tried soul and would be acceptable to many another small invalid. The quilt is made of flags and is just the size of the bed and not intended to be tucked in. The flags are the little silk ones of all nations that are cheaply bought in quantities. Each has been lined with a firm muslin, as the silk is too poor a quality to be durable. The flags are put together with a simple feather stitch, the quilt being made up with wool-battling, which is both light and warm, a thin silk used to line the other side. The idea was suggested to the hospital worker by the pleasure her little nephew took in a quilt of the kind which his mother provided and kept to interest him on his occasional sick days. While in theory the normal child ought not to have enough sick days through the year to be specially provided for, in fact, thanks to our processes of living and eating, he is quite likely to, and this bit of bed cheer is by no means to be despised. The same idea may be applied in the making of a cushion for a window seat or couch of a boy's room.—New York Evening Post.

Brought Apples to England. Of all the productions of the vegetable world which the skill and ingenuity of man have rendered conducive to his happiness and to the increase of his enjoyments the apple stands forward as the most conspicuous. It is now a fruit crop of universal growth, and although the most beautifully sun-stained examples reach us at various periods of the year from Canada and California and the temperate regions of our great Australian colonies, for flavor none of them equal those grown in England. The garden apple is believed to have been introduced into Britain by the Romans, and the wild apple of our hedgerows is the type of the fruit when left to degenerate and to which it would speedily return but for constant culture.—London Telegraph.

Robes of Musk-Ox Skins. The skin of the musk-ox, which is a denizen of the "Barren Grounds" and the Arctic region of Canada, has taken the place of that of the extinct buffalo for sleigh robes. It varies in price from $50 to as low as $5 for a poor article.

Brain-Weight and Mental Power. It is stated by an authority that the weight of a man's brain has nothing to do with his mental power. The colder the climate, the greater the size of the brain. The largest heads of all are those of the Chugatches, who live very far north, and next come the heads of the Laps.
